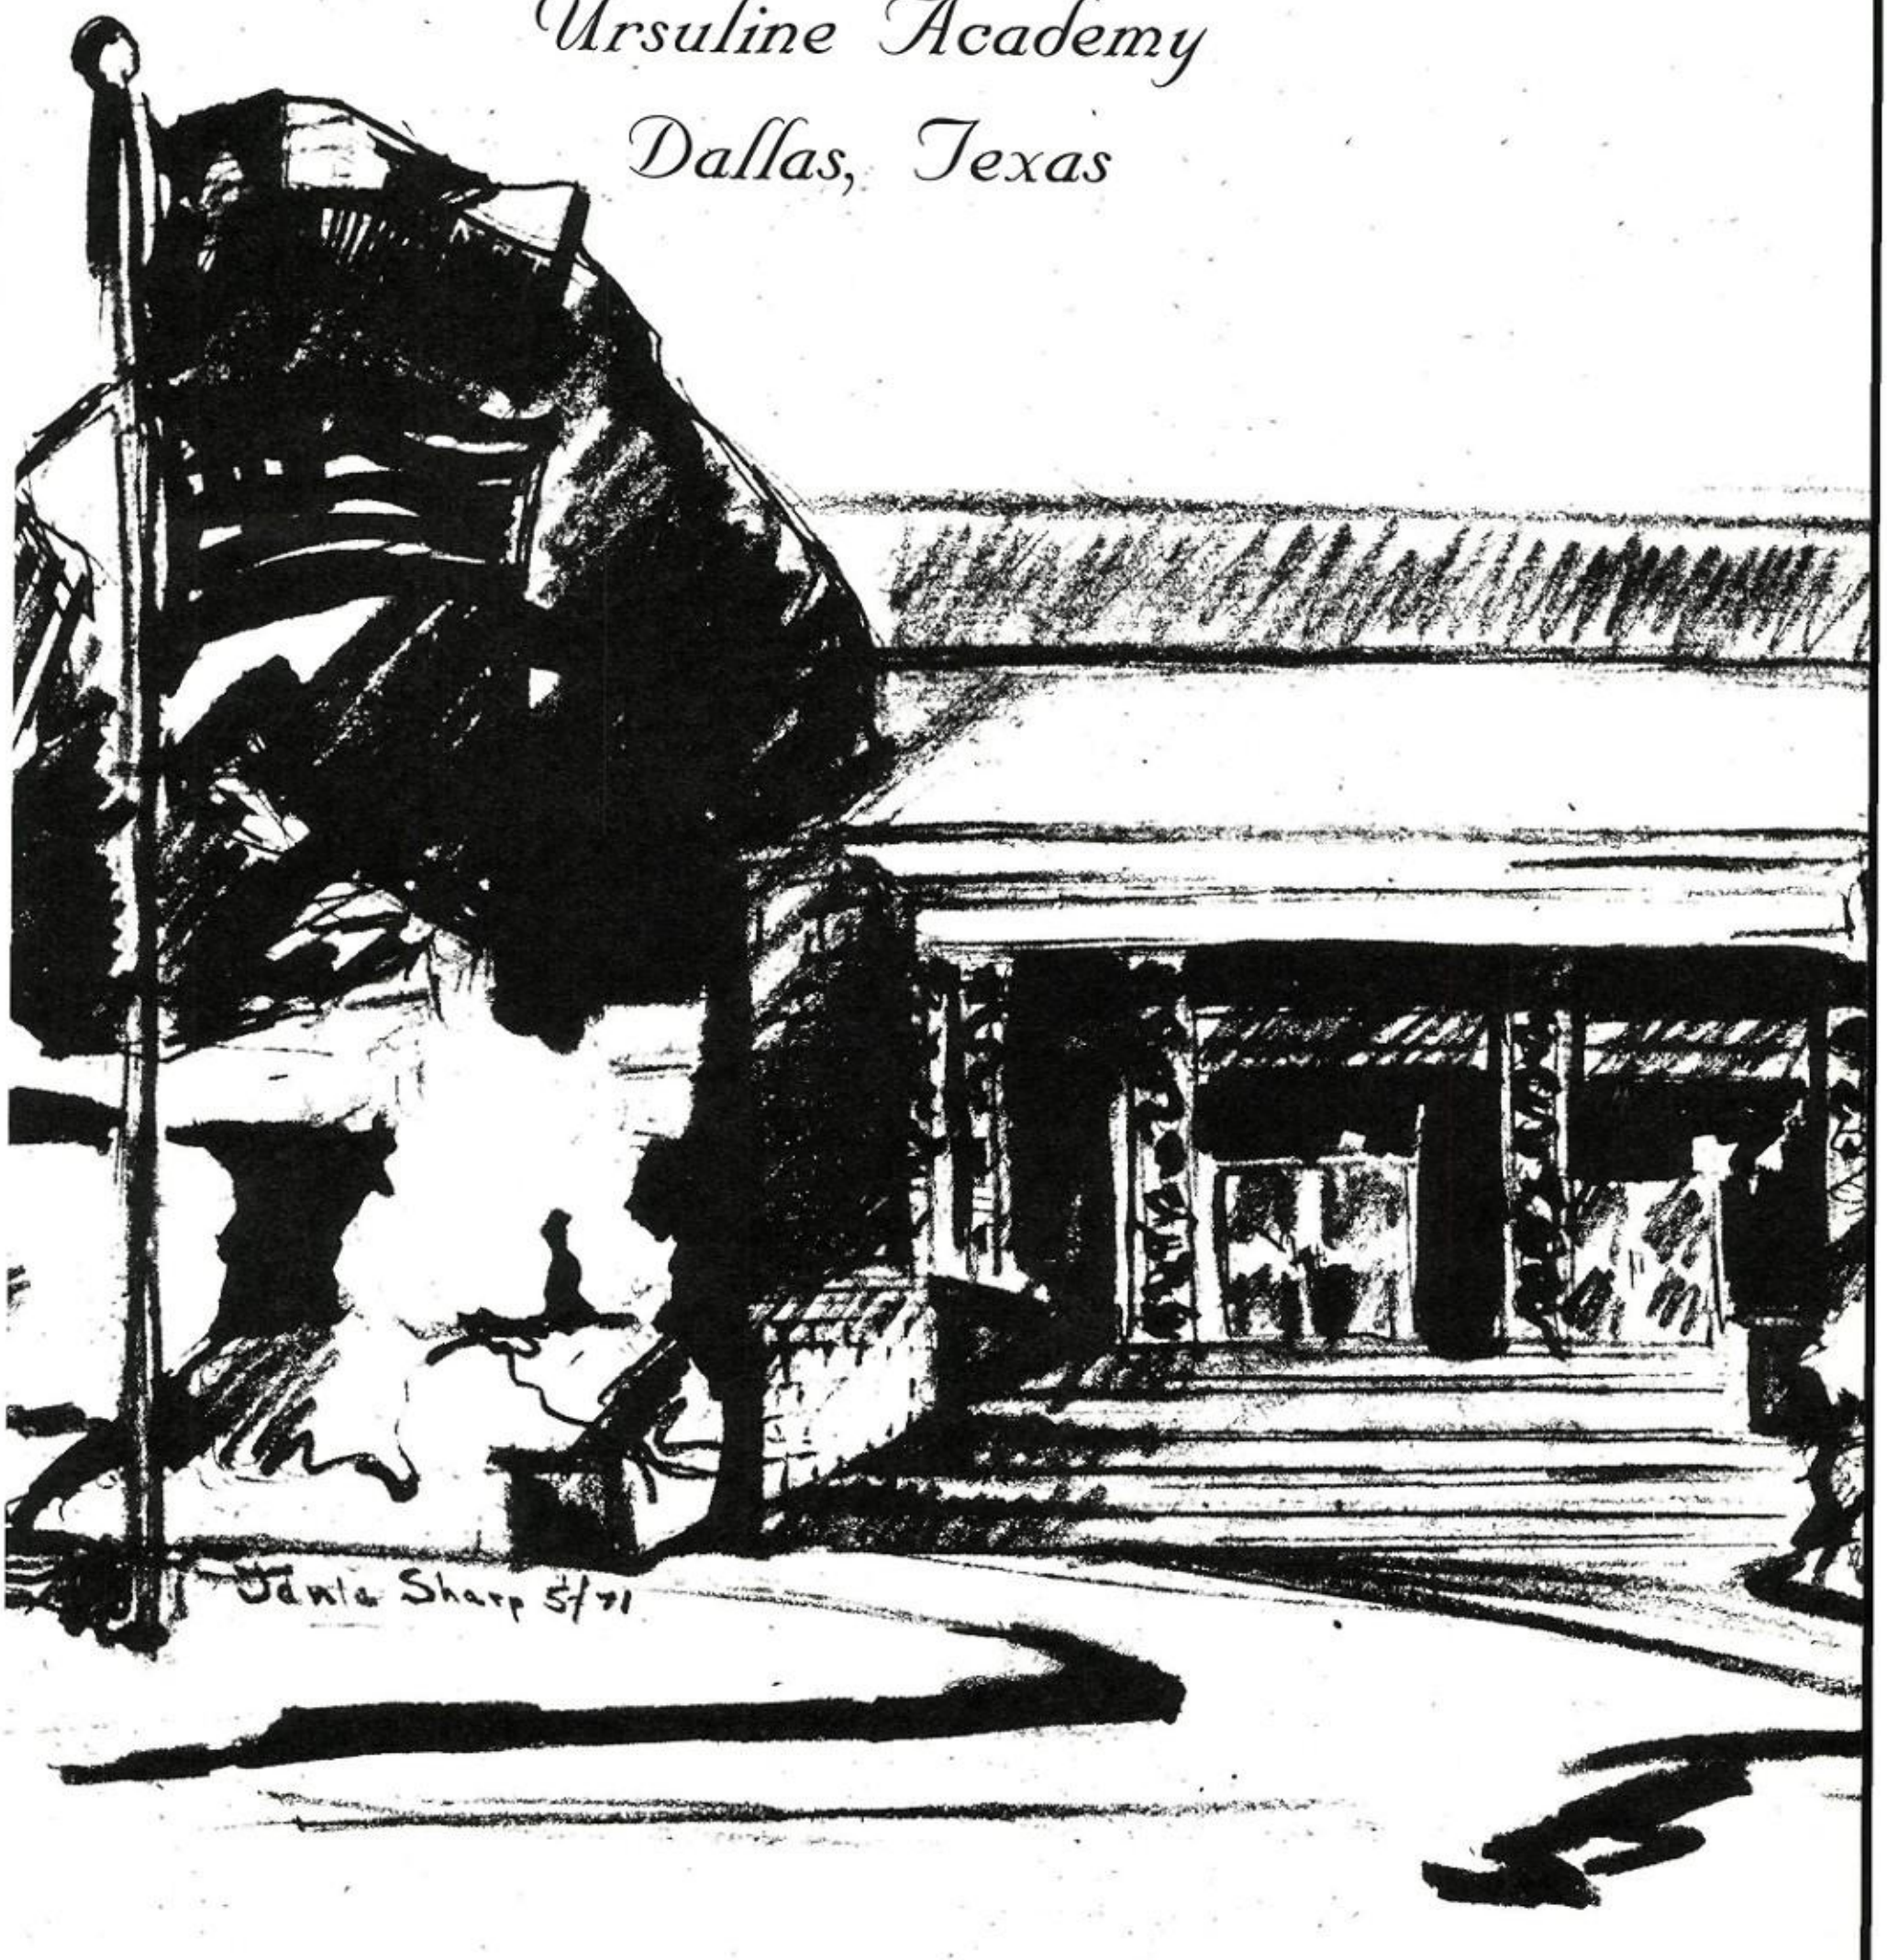
The Acres

1971

Ursuline Academy

Dallas, Texas



For those who might see it, we are spending one wet white morning of our lives growing, becoming whatever strange creature life and experience have determined. We are about to break out of our shiny silk cocoons of conformity, for so long suspended beneath the protective palms of our parents, as we begin to process what facts of nature our larval sensors have already recorded. Thus we are maturing in spiritual fraternity, learning to question. All of us are in different stages of development. Those already emerging can usually make the initial discovery of "self"; hopefully they shall also light upon the more precious flower, the concept of "thou." Only as we share our experiences with other creatures, together probing the sylvan dew for its life-giving secrets, can our souls be properly nourished. And her wings thus strengthened, a young butterfly is prepared for her most perilous journey. That is, the quest upon which she must brave the course that climbs to the sun, seeking the highest most painful truths. And each time such a soul wavers in flight, there are those who would steady her, ease her pain with laughter and companionship. We rely on the aid and encouragement of others; after all, even a small star is no match for undeveloped, untested wings. Therefore, let us thrive on the loving society of others at this time offered so freely, so that we may not only survive the experience of encountering the sun's truths, but hold their light forever in our hearts.

Dedication

One of the most uplifting experiences life offers is an encounter with a sympathetic spirit. We think we have found such a spirit in Sister Lorene. Throughout the year, she has supported us as we met obstacles in our school and personal lives. Always available to those who needed her, Sister has provided practical advice. Trumpet in hand, she is a versatile, exceptional friend. We dedicate Acres '71 to Sister Lorene, in appreciation for her strength and sincerity in personal commitments to the school and students.

No matter what they are
and you can take the Risk and endure the Suffering
that is part of Friendship
and love the person
so much

The slick texture
Of its monstrous interior
Could be seen
For many miles.
Its thin white arms
Enveloped the atmosphere
And met
Where I sat
Unnoticed - a mere speck of color
On the great ivory plain.

In the depths below
A frothy substance
Wandered
Among huge crystal boulders
And hissing bubbles
Horrible globs of brown liquid
Dotted its stomach
Like oversized warts
Clenching to
An unwilling victim...
I started up the long walk
Up its slippery arms
To view the other side.

It's part of every find
It's searching with your mind
It's looking out far beyond
It's seeing every human bond
It's the beginning of a relationship
It's a tool with which we are equipped

...The eye.

It's a passageway into the mind
It's the searching part of every find
It's the beginning to a relationship
It's a tool with which we are all equipped
It's an essential piece to every high
It's man's gift from God - The eye.
To feel the high of a meaningful cry we first of all must have an eye.

Mary DeLoache

Estamos solos...
lo uno nosotros;
Lejos de las preguntas,
las contestaciones, la gente,
No hay razon para ser mal entendidos,
No hay razon para nuestras
y aun lloramos;
La vida es muy dificil
...pero la muerte es mas triste.
No vale la pena...¿ o valdra?
La muerte es paz,
Y paz es libertad,
¿ No es eso lo que queremos?
...pero morimos solos,
No te puedo llevar conmigo;
La soledad es aterrador,
La muerte es nuestra unica salida,
Entonces, ven conmigo ahora y
se valiente,
No dejemos
mas que tristeza.

GEOMETRY ON DAY 3 AT THE ACADEMY

Triangles are really weird
They're not at all
Like spheres which don't have fronts
And don't have rears
And also they can't hear.

Life is just a game, you see
We all play it/you and me
And life is just a game, you see
The only way to live it is to be free.

Triangles I guess are fair
They're a little bit like squares
Which have four sides
Two sets of pairs
But they ain't got no hair

And life is just a game, you see
We all play it/you and me
And life is just a game you see
The only way to live is to be free.

Triangles ain't got no brains
So they don't think
My poems are strange they love me
And I love great danes
And also they love horses manes,
Strange-

And life is just a silly game
With rules that seem to seldom change
And if you hate me then I'll love you
Well, that's the only thing that we can do,

I'M thru-
